

The Straits Times, April 2 2014

“Developing Resilient Kids”

Former president S R Nathan being helped on stage by Brahm Centre founder Angie Chew during the launch of the centre’s new book, “The Day The Ball Didn’t Bounce”, yesterday.

Based on the true story of a 16-year-old Singaporean boy who hanged himself last year, the book looks to equip parents and teachers with the skills to build up resilient children and youth.

The public can get a copy by donating $10 to the Brahm Centre at 71 Irrawaddy Road.